

Here is some biographical information concerning Dan Graham and his family:

Dan Graham was born in Jacksonville, Florida. He graduated from Englewood High School; Carson-Newman College in Jefferson City, Tennessee; Jacksonville University in Jacksonville, Florida; and Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Georgia. Before going to seminary, Dan taught and coached and later worked in the insurance industry.

While a student and in full time parish ministry, Dan has served churches in Kingston, Jamaica; Jefferson, Georgia; Lincoln, England; Lexington, South Carolina; West Point, Georgia; and Columbus, Georgia. Dan was also a part time assistant prison chaplain while in Columbus. Since retirement, he has been a campus minister with the Westminster Fellowship of Columbus State University and has done supply preaching in Georgia and Florida. He has been interim pastor at Trinity Presbyterian Church in Palm Coast, at St. Johns Presbyterian Church in Jacksonville, and at First Presbyterian Church of Starke. From October 2010 until September 2012, he coordinated the Matthew 13 Boat Ministry sponsored by Memorial Presbyterian Church of St. Augustine.

Dan is married to the former Judith Ann Wells of Norton, Virginia. They met at Carson-Newman where Judith Ann studied music and home economics. Judith Ann has taught school and has worked in the insurance industry. She is currently serving as a substitute teacher for the St. Johns County School system.

Judith Ann and Dan have been married for 40 years and have two daughters, Rebekah and Ann. Rebekah is the Program Associate in the Dean's Office for the Reich College of Education at Appalachian State University in Boone, North Carolina. Rebekah and Wesley Saylor were married in October 2008. Wes writes and teaches at several colleges in the Boone area. Ann teaches Latin at Alpharetta High School in Alpharetta, Georgia. Judith Ann and Dan now make their home in St. Augustine, Florida.
